BACKGROUND

The Technology Matching Fund program was established in 1997 to support the community's efforts to close the digital divide and encourage a technology-healthy city. It provides grants where the community's contribution of volunteer labor, materials, professional services, or cash is matched by the Technology Matching Fund.

The fund is administered by the Community Technology Program of the City of Seattle's Information Technology Department and is funded with cable franchise fees. Over $5 million has been awarded from 1998 to 2019.

The fund continues the legacy of Bill Wright, a Central District community leader who embodied the program goals of creating digital equity and opportunities for all, and of using technology tools to engage residents, improve communications and strengthen communities. Bill Wright developed MidTown Commons, one of the early technology access and education centers in Seattle.

PROGRAM GOALS

The Technology Matching Fund is a cornerstone of the City's Digital Equity Initiative. The fund seeks to support community-driven solutions to achieving digital equity in Seattle. Our vision is for Seattle to be a city where technology's opportunities equitably empower all residents and communities – especially those who are historically underserved or underrepresented. The Technology Matching Fund aims to address gaps that exist in these areas:

- » Connectivity: Increase access to free or low-cost broadband.
- » Skills training: Empower residents with digital literacy skills.
- » Devices and technical support: Ensure affordable, available and sufficient devices and technical support.

PROJECT IDEAS

The fund seeks to support creative and collaborative approaches to providing digital opportunities. Priority is given to projects that engage historically underserved or underrepresented communities and leverage existing relationships, resources and expertise.

Example 1: A group that works with seniors seeks to provide information to its clients about the availability of low-cost home broadband options and how to sign up. The group may apply for funds to work with a trainer to deliver a series of broadband workshops at its site and six other senior centers over the course of the year.

Example 2: A community group working with immigrant and refugee families offers a popular after-school youth program and wants to add coding classes. The group can apply for funds to upgrade its computer lab and partner with an organization that specializes in delivering coding programs for kids.

Example 3: A group offers an employment program for low-income adults. It can apply for funds to provide specialized tech training and refurbished laptops positioning their clients for a more successful job search.
